

Websites, print and digital newsletters, brochures, writing, editing – we do it all

We Can Help Your Small Business Communicate More Effectively

At Palmerworks, we love to write...and design...and meet people. That's why we we started our company in 2002. Since then, we've met lots of interesting new business owners, people who needed a site to showcase their services, and others who simply needed updates to their old websites.

We enjoy what we do.

Web Design

We design, host, and maintain sites. Since most business owners have a lot of details to keep them busy, they appreciate our full service packages. And, if you give us some information to use for content, we'll write and edit it to utilize the key words and titles that will make make it search engine friendly.

Print Design

From logo design to newsletter layout, Palmerworks has been designing exceptional print media for local businesses for more than 15 years. Rick is a former communications rep whose design, layout, and writing skills have won more than two dozen national awards. He'll design your one-page poster, small brochure, or even a full-color 16-page newsletter.

The Palmerworks Design Philosophy

“Good writing is at the heart of a professional website. Many graphic and web designers can produce a stylish site, but have no aptitude for the written word. Without succinctly written text, websites lose their ability to sell your products or services.”

Katherine Palmer, Co-President of Palmerworks

“When I design a website or a print project, I listen to the client’s ideas, likes, and dislikes. I use classic design that doesn’t distract from the message or product, and I strive to make it as visually appealing and down to earth as possible. I like to use white space and graphics generously.” Rick Palmer, Co-President of Palmerworks
